WAR ON FAKES.

Luling Turns His Attention to Doubtful Life Insurance Schemes

Topeka, Kan., Sept. 24.—State Superintendent of Insurance Charles H. Luling, who instituted a war some time ago on fake life insurance companies, has now turned his attention to agents of life insurance companies who sell policies by means of false representations. He has already revoked the licenses of a number of agents operating in this state and is investigating charges against not a few others. It is Mr. Luling's intention to establish a "black list" and when the license of an agent has been revoked by the department he will not be issued another at any time in the future under any consideration.

Mr. Luling's purpose is to protect the people of the state from unscrupulous agents who practically rob them of their money by selling them worthless policies.

Yesterday Superintendent Luling notified the Indiana State Life Insurance company of Indianapolis of his willingness to give the company a hearing relative to the action of the department in revoking the license of a half dozen of their agents a few days ago. The agents were selling a commuted premium policy which Mr. Luling warned the company more than three months ago not to attempt to place in this state. The policy is a complicated one and no one but an insurance man can understand its provisions. As a result agents are particularly liable to misrepresent it.

"There's just one thing about it," yesterday said Superintendent Luling, "the company has not to keep this commuted premium policy out of Kansas or I will revoke the license of everyone of its agents and bar the company from the state in addition."

Mr. Luling also notified the Missouri State Life Insurance company of St. Louis yesterday to instruct its agents to cease misrepresenting its gold bond policy or he would revoke their licenses. It seems the agents have been inducing many people to purchase the policy by representing the company would pay double the face of the policy in cash at the end of ten years.

This Mr. Luling says, any insurance man knows to be impossible for the company to do.

The insurance papers of the country are commenting very favorably on Mr. Luling's method of handling agents and particularly of his scheme of blacklisting those against whom complaint has been made.

The Insurance Surveyor of Illinois says it solves the problem of eliminating "rounders" which has puzzled insurance managers and general agents for years.

IMPORTANT CAPTURE.

Officers Believe They Have One of the Train Robbers

Wathens, Kan., Sept. 24.—Officers here and at St. Joseph think that a very important capture was made here this afternoon which may be connected with the hold-up of the Burlington train near St. Joseph Tuesday night. Sheriff Ramsey of Troy arrested William Munsie on an old warrant, charging him with an attempt to kill. Munsie skipped into Wathens last night and was at his father's house when captured.

This Mr. Luling says, any insurance man knows to be impossible for the company to do.
